March 2026 net cash flow was $2,365.56, with a 48.52% savings rate. Food & Dining spending was $735.24, exceeding the $250.00 budget by $485.24. Next month has 7 projected recurring obligations totaling $1,311.65.

Executive Dashboard

One-page CFO answer: Alex has strong monthly cash generation, but the dashboard highlights the thin emergency runway, debt load, goal progress, and capital-event readiness before the detailed pages.

Area	Current Readout	CFO Interpretation
Net Cash Flow	$2,365.56	Core monthly surplus available for goals and risk reduction.
Savings Rate	48.52%	Above the target savings rate for the month.
Emergency Runway	1.9 months	Red: Thin: under 3 months of expenses covered
Risk Register	High 2 / Medium 2 / Low 2	Attention needed: 2 high and 2 medium risks.
Top Goal	Emergency Fund	Green: On track: $2,365.56/mo covers the $288.89 needed
Capital Event	Home purchase: Red: Not yet	Do not buy until cash and payment gaps close.
Rent vs Buy	Renting	Over 5 years, renting looks about $20,754.68 cheaper (estimate; excludes investment returns on the down payment and assumes 3% rent growth and 3% home appreciation).
Next Action	Review H&M charge of $61.25 by March 25 because Shopping spend was $113.05 versus the $100.00 budget, creating a $13.05 overage. Expected impact: up to $61.25 cash recovered or reclassified.	Impact: $61.25

CFO Commentary

This month I spent $735.24 on Food & Dining, which was over my $250.00 budget by $485.24. I still generated $2,365.56 of net cash flow, but the 48.52% savings rate could be stronger if I controlled repeat food purchases. I also have $1,311.65 of recurring obligations coming due next month, so I need to make the first week tighter. Next month I plan to cap Food & Dining at $250.00 to preserve at least $485.24 of cash flow.

Risk Register

Attention needed: 2 high and 2 medium risks.

Risk	Level	Finding	Recommendation
Emergency Fund	Red: High	Liquid cash covers only 1.9 months of expenses (target 3 to 6).	Prioritize building an emergency fund before new discretionary spending.
Income Concentration	Yellow: Medium	About 98% of income comes from a single source.	A single income source raises job-loss risk; keep a strong emergency fund and consider diversifying.
Debt Load	Red: High	Debt is 533% of assets.	Pay down high-interest debt first and keep total debt well below assets.
Cash Flow	Green: Low	Positive cash flow with a 49.2% savings rate.	Keep directing the surplus to goals and the emergency fund.
Housing Cost Burden	Green: Low	Housing is 18% of income ($900.00 of $4,873.33).	Housing cost is within a comfortable share of income.
Insurance Coverage	Yellow: Medium	No insurance payments were detected in the period.	Verify health, renters/home, and auto coverage; a gap is a major financial risk.

Capital Event: Home Purchase Readiness

Readiness to buy a $350,000.00 home: Red: Not yet

Metric	Value
Down Payment + Closing Costs	$80,500.00
Liquid Cash Available	$4,600.00

Emergency Buffer to Preserve	$7,426.14

Gaps to close: Short $75,900.00 for down payment + closing costs. Estimated payment is 48% of income, above the 36% ceiling.

Major purchase check ($8,000.00): Red: Not yet - Short $3,400.00; not affordable from cash today.

Rent vs Buy (5-Year)

Metric	Value
Current Monthly Rent	$900.00
Total Rent (5 yrs)	$57,338.67
Buy: Upfront (down + closing)	$80,500.00
Buy: Total PITI (5 yrs)	$139,770.82
Buy: Home Equity at Horizon	$142,177.47
Buy: Net Cost	$78,093.34
Lower Net Cost	Renting

Over 5 years, renting looks about $20,754.68 cheaper (estimate; excludes investment returns on the down payment and assumes 3% rent growth and 3% home appreciation).
